Dean’s Column

How do we explain the fascination many of us share for the organ as an artifact? What is it about the organ—mechanically, culturally, historically—that brings us together for an event like the chapter organ crawl on November 5? While the range of our chapter programming runs the gamut of the interests of our members, the organ crawl bring the organ itself to the fore.

The answer is, no doubt, different for each of us. Two reasons come to mind that apply for me. First, the organ is a hands-on device that is fun to make music with, and second, my enjoyment of listening to others play the organ is inseparably connected to my almost constant awareness of the unique physical presence of the organ in the place where it is played.

My first experience with playing the organ was while I was in grade school, just after I started taking piano lessons. Our church, St. James on the Parkway Episcopal in Minneapolis, had a standard Hammond church organ. The organist... and choirmaster Greg Larson (some of you may remember him) showed me how to turn on the instrument, and let me have free rein in the empty church after the worship service. I remember carefully working the start lever while the insides of the organ console ground and whirred. I loved trying my little pieces from First Lessons in Bach, first on this manual, and next on that one. What would happen when I pulled this drawbar, or depressed that preset key? What was a Leslie and what happened when I turned that on?

Admittedly, this might have been a "guy thing," the same tendency that drew me to Lincoln Logs, Erector Sets, and model airplanes. But, think of our Pipe Organ Discovery Day programs. Each year they bring young people together for a guided hands-on experience of the organ. The students experience what it is like to touch it, play it, climb inside the inner workings. This initial introduction to a mechanical artifact hopefully plants a seed that might eventually grow a new organist. Or even if the student does not become an organist, at least a new world is opened to them. They begin to appreciate, even in an unsophisticated way, organ music and the amazing art of playing the organ. They might experience in a new way the joy of singing in church with a robust organ accompaniment. They become the next generation of supporters of the organ.

This awareness and appreciation of the organ as a mechanical device, the physicality of the instrument, rarely leaves me when listening to the organ in concerts or church. We feel the rumbling depths and brilliant heights of the multitude of pipes in the Æolian-Skinner at Northrop Auditorium, their sounds bouncing off the walls and filling the space. We might feel transported, as I was, by the ending of the Vincent Dubois’ recent performance of the Franck B Minor Chorale at the Cathedral of Saint Paul, when the sanctuary organ whispered the final bars from behind grillwork in a distant chamber out of sight in the apse. Or we are fascinated by watching the organist as they play feet dancing and flying fingers, manipulating stops, working swell pedals.

The fun of the organ crawl was for me, however, more than the physical, mechanical aspect of the instruments. We also learned about the history of the organ in each church, and how that history is wrapped up with the story of the congregation and their leaders, their worship, and their mission. We also witnessed the enthusiasm and dedication of resident organists, who see their work as not only playing, conducting, serving the worship, but of preserving and protecting the heritage that their church’s pipe organ embodies. This convergence of culture, history, church music, organ building, and faith is great stuff indeed!

The importance of preserving and passing on this heritage is beautifully exemplified in a PBS News report on the recently expanded instrument in the Abbey Church at St. John’s. The report highlights the Benedictine monastery’s collaboration with organ builder Martin Pasi to invest in the future of the tradition of the hand-crafted pipe organ. Our own chapter’s video documentary on the Northrop organ, premiered at our event there this past June, explored the past, present, and future of that instrument in the musical and cultural life of the University of Minnesota, and the Twin Cities, and beyond. Our chapter’s organ crawls and other public events help us accomplish our Guild’s mission by sharing our passion for the organ and celebrating its history and heritage.

Our Pipedreams scholarship program is another important chapter effort that helps us pass on to future generations our passion for the organ. We are grateful to Steve Gentile and his committee for their work managing the scholarship audition process each year. See his report elsewhere in this newsletter. Please keep in mind this scholarship as you encounter young students in your churches or schools. The funding is there and waiting—encourage your students to audition and take advantage of the opportunity!

A Word from Our Chaplain

Speak Plainly

At a recent AGO concert I was surprised and delighted to see a small group of Boy Scouts with their leaders in the audience. As they listened attentively to the music, I couldn’t help but wonder what level of their appreciation and comprehension they were experiencing. When I look at printed concert programs, I often see a lot of “foreign” terms—Italian expressions, German chorales, Latin chants, French phrases, etc.—as well as musicological jargon. It may have seemed to those boys that we musicians speak in secret code.

If it is our goal to communicate the essence and background of our music to the general public, including the youth, we must search for general terms and commonly understood phrases. I am an advocate for carefully written program notes, composed in understandable language, which describes the nature of the music and suggests what we might listen for. Each performer finds different nuances in the score and lends a unique interpretation; these might well be shared in the written program. There are, of course, technicalities that remain the listing of organ specifications, prime example.

The AGO continues to reach out to young people, musicians or not, through Pipe Organ Encounters, Discovery Days, organ crawls, and Young Artists Competitions. Our Boy Scouts seemed really eager to examine the mechanical aspects of console and pipe chamber following the concert in question. I applaud performers and hosts for welcoming such visits from young and old guests. Thanks, too, to all hosts, in addition to playing music, also speak simple words of explanation and encouragement.

Pipe Organ Discovery Day

Saturday, February 4, 2023, 9:00 a.m.–3:00 p.m.
University of Minnesota, Minneapolis campus
Event starts at Ferguson Hall (West Bank) and moves to Northrop (main campus)

For this very special event, we will welcome guest Isabelle Demers (McGill University, Montréal). We will also be joined by the Young Women’s Organist Cohort, and students from the University of Minnesota School of Music.

Pipe Organ Discovery Day provides young students an opportunity to learn more about the pipe organ and, very importantly, to expand their knowledge with hands-on experience on a variety of instruments. This event is free to all participants. Family members welcome. Prior keyboard experience is needed to play the instruments; all are welcome to come and learn. This is a great opportunity for piano students in grades 3 through 12 to play three organs over the course of the day. A pizza lunch is provided, courtesy of the Twin Cities Chapter of the AGO.

Students will be able to play instruments by van Daalen and Bedient in Ferguson Hall (West Bank) and Æolian-Skinner at Northrop (main campus).

In addition to the hands-on playing opportunities, students will also participate in short classes about how the pipe organ works to gain a better understanding of the instrument and its history. Pipe Organ Discovery Day starts at 9:00 a.m. and ends at 3:00 p.m.

Registration is required for Pipe Organ Discovery Day.

Complete schedules for the day and registration information will be available on the TCAGO website by early January at www.tcago.org. Visit the Events Page and scroll down to February 4.

Pipedreams Scholarship Audition
Saturday, April 22, 2023, 10:00 a.m.
Shepherd of the Hills Lutheran Church
500 Blake Road South, Hopkins

Please share this information with anyone interested in organ lessons! Even if you are not a teacher, you may know of a student who plays the piano, or you may be involved in choir or other music in your church and would know a student or adult who may be interested.

Two $500 scholarships are available, one for a youth and one for an adult, as a one-time stipend paid directly to the student’s teacher, not to a student’s teacher, not to the student’s teacher.

Youth grades 7 through 12 may audition upon recommendation of their teacher (piano or organ). No previous organ study is necessary and, for those students, the audition would be on the piano. Youth may re-apply with recommendation of a teacher. Any adult organist who is interested in more organ study may audition for the other $500 scholarship. Find the details at TCAGO.org on the Education page.

The last winner of the Pipedreams Scholarship Audition was Sheila Loger. She is organist at Maternity of Mary Catholic Church in Saint Paul and is a student of Steve Gentile.

Advent Lessons and Carols at Holy Cross
Saturday, December 10, 7:00 p.m.
Holy Cross Catholic Church
1621 University Avenue NE, Minneapolis

Holy Cross Catholic Church will host their Second Annual Advent Lessons and Carols. This musical celebration combines seasonal carols, choral music, and hymns with Scripture readings for the season. This event is free and open to the public and there is ample parking. A social reception with food and drinks will follow in Kolbe Hall.

Though the tradition of Lessons and Carols originated in the late nineteenth century in England, Holy Cross’s observance of this tradition has a delightfully Polish flair, featuring beloved kolędy (Polish Carols) and even a couple of readings in Polish! This program features organ music by Borowski and Reger, choral music by Palestrina, Wood, Manz, Goldschmidt, Carter, as well the premiere of a newly composed carol by Holy Cross Director of Music, Samuel Backman, entitled The Branch of Peace.

TCAGO Event Promotion via Pipedreams

A comprehensive listing of organ events statewide is available online via the Pipedreams Organ Calendar. Information there is only as good as the information provided to it, so you are encouraged to send event listings for inclusion at the earliest possible time.

For both on-air and website listings of organ-related activities, please send information to Pipedreams host (and longtime TCAGO member) Michael Barone, or by mail to: Pipedreams Calendar, 480 Cedar St., Saint Paul, MN 55101. In a pinch, you may call 651-290-1539.

You are also encouraged to regularly request organ selections on the Friday Favorites show with Steven Staruch. Help promote the inclusion of more organ music in MPR’s programming.

NOTE: It is requested that you include this text in printed programs for any local organ concerts you play or present:

Enjoy the gamut of the pipe organ experience...from ancient to modern, sacred to secular, classical to popular...with weekly broadcasts of Pipedreams from American Public Media. Broadcasts in the Twin Cities are heard Sunday mornings (6–8 a.m.) on KSJN-99.5FM and other stations in the Classical MPR network. For your convenience, Pipedreams also is globally available 24/7 at www.pipedreams.org or www.yourclassical.org/pipedreams.

The Organ Calendar is accessible online and is read in week-appropriate summaries beginning at 7:00 a.m. during each Sunday morning Pipedreams broadcast.
